

EXPLANATORY NOTES

In this abstract it is assumed that every section is 80 chains (or 320 rods) square, and that the surveys are true courses. Any departure from this rule is noted.

The names of the grantors, mortgagors, and lessors are given as signed; if the signatures differ from the names as they appear in the body of the instrument, or in the acknowledgment, the difference is indicated by note. Where the marital status of the parties is shown on the record, it is so shown in the abstract, but if not shown on the record, it is so indicated by note.

(From Feb. 16, 1872, to March 3, 1887, the right to dower was abolished in Utah. Prior to the first date and subsequently to the later day, the wife should join in the instrument.)

The names of the parties making certificates, notices, affidavits, and similar instruments, are given as signed.

Words, figures and characters in quotation marks, and words, figures, and characters underscored, are the exact words, figures and characters used in the instrument. Under-scoring indicates a careful comparison with the record.
